

artnet® news

The 20 Most Fashionable Women in the Art World

By Artnet News Editors | July 27, 2016

It's already been a big year for women's fashion. Besuited style bloggers are all the rage this season, and Vogue maintains that leopard print is back, whether you like it or not, sweetie darling.

The art world is also mercurial, and those in the know seem to be up with the latest trends in both realms. From emerging artists to established movers and shakers, see who made artnet News's list of best-dressed women in art this year below.

Casey Fremont, Doreen Remen, Yvonne Force Villareal. Courtesy of Sean Zanni/Patrick McMullan.

The trio: Yvonne Force Villareal, Doreen Remen, and Casey Fremont

The sociable #squad behind the Art Production Fund—which has worked with everyone from Lena Dunham to Elmgreen & Dragset—are always dressed to the nines, invoking the creative spirit of the artists they champion. Their annual gala was a hit, per usual, and the eye-popping gowns the trio donned perfectly encapsulate their fun, carefree approach to fashion.