A Desert Oasis of Art

On Monday, Aug. 10 in the desert outside of Las Vegas where the bodies are buried, the artist Ugo Rondinone unveiled one of the most monumental earth works of the past 10 years, an 800-foot sculpture of rocks called the "Seven Magic Mountains," produced with the help of local artists and in collaboration with the Nevada Museum of Art. Naturally, the art was followed, including our interview with Joni Craig, the woman who named the project."